Glen Ridge Notes.

Classes in Millinery, Sewing and Dressmaking.

The classes for adults in millinery and sewing have proved great successes, as they are well patronized by Glen Ridge, Bloomfield and Montclair. The members meet at Glen Ridge Hall every Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. They are under the instruction of Miss Asten from Pratt Institute, Brooklyn.

The terms are very low so that all who are anxious to join classes may do so. The intention is to establish a school for Manual Training and to have the best teachers from Pratt Institute.

Classes in wood-carving, carpentry and cookery will be formed as soon as there are enough applicants.

The cooking classes will meet on Saturday mornings.

There will also be a chafing-dish course.

Miss Northall will be pleased to give all the desired information about these classes, and hopes that many more will avail themselves of these opportunities.

The Glen Ridge Tennis Club are playing a tournament. The names of the lucky winners have not been announced as yet.

The chestnutting season is again with us and the woods are full of young and old gathering the nuts. Nutting parties are in vogue and it is quite the fad for young ladies to don their bicycle costumes while hunting the prickly fruit.

The funeral of Mrs. White, mother of the Rev. Edwin A. White, took place in Christ Church on Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. Mr. ——— of Summit officiated, and there was special singing by the vested choir. The body was taken to Goshen, Conn., on Thursday morning for interment.

The convention of the Essex County Sunday Schools was held in the First Presbyterian Church of South Orange on Wednesday. It was very largely attended and a number of familiar faces from the churches in our town were seen among the throng.

The young people of the Christian Endeavor Society of Westminster Church gave a very enjoyable sociable Tuesday evening.

The Ladies' Vocal Club held their first meeting and rehearsal last Wednesday afternoon. The following officers were elected: Mrs. J. M. Walsh, President; Mrs. R. N. Arms, Vice President; Mrs. A. R. Pierson, Treasurer; Mrs. J. Nichols, Secretary. About ten more names are desired to be added to the list of active members. Any lady desirous of joining the Club should send her name or confer with one of the above mentioned ladies.

A large number of friends of the Rev. Carl Hock and Rev. Jacob Schmidtt took possion of the German Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening to witness their ordination as ministers of the gospel. Both are teachers in the Seminary. Rev. J. Beveridge Lee of the First Presbyterian Church preached the sermon. Rev. Henry W. Seibert offered prayer. Rev. DINING WITH THE PRINCE.

The Hospitality of Albert Edward at Marlborough House.

The Prince of Wales gives in the course of the season certain special dinners at Marlborough House, which in many essential respects differ from those which he attends at other people's houses. The guests do not number more than 45 people, including the ladies and gentlemen in attendance upon the prince and princess. When members of the royal family arrive at Marlborough House, at the outer gate, the fact is at once signaled from the lodge, so that the Prince and Princess of Wales are never taken by surprise, but are in readiness to receive them.

The dining room in which the banquet is served is a magnificently decorated apartment, with a ceiling of white and gold. On the wall on the left hand side is a great square of red plush to set off the presentations of plate which have been made to their royal highnesses during the recent years. The Prince of Wales, as a host, sits not at the end, but in the middle seat, at the side of a large and long table. Table decorations are of a massive, ornate and rather heavy character. A very high centerpiece is filled with flowers, and more blossoms are placed in tall vases resembling specimen glasses.

Probably Marlborough House is the only place in London in which the knives and forks are laid so curiously. To each guest two forks and no more are provided, and these are placed prongs downward, reversing the usual method. In addition there is one large tablespoon and one large knife. In no circumstance are two knives permitted upon the table simultaneously, and for this rule a very strange reason is assigned. His royal highness is very superstitious, and on no account will he incur the risk of having knives crossed inadvertently. The wineglasses are placed, by the bye, in a line as straight as a company of soldiers, and the services are simply folded in two. Small water bottles are used, but apparently finger bowls are tabooed in Marlborough House.

Dinner begins at 8:45 p. m. and lasts for one hour and ten minutes. Rapid service is insisted upon. Yet four or five waiters only are allowed to enter the dining room, which is, however, some distance from the kitchen. Celerity and dispatch are obtained by the employment of a small army of assistants stationed behind the scenes.

For dessert royal blue sevres is used, and when the time has come for coffee and cigars the custom is once during the year, and only once—the night of the Derby dinner—to hand to each guest a silver lighter of unique design. No two lamps are alike, as they have at various times been presented by different donors to the Prince of Wales, and each one has its history.—Ladies' Home Journal.

An Example.

Theodore—Tell me, now, what is the meaning of the expression, "pulling your leg?"

Richard—I can't tell you in so many words, but I will illustrate. You haven't $10 about you that you can let me have for a week or two? Thanks.—Boston Transcript.

Washing Dirty Linen.

"Washing dirty linen in public" is probably an old proverbial saying. It was made famous by Napoleon, who used it in a speech to the chamber of deputies in 1814 to intimate that differences between the parties in France should not become a matter of public scandal.
